

Brown v. Board of Education: Fifty Years Later
An Address by U.S. Secretary of Education Rod Paige

Wednesday, January 7, 2004, 9:00–10:30 a.m.
Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI
1150 Seventeenth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036

It has been fifty years since the Warren court struck down the principle of separate but equal in Brown v. Topeka Board of Education. To commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of this landmark decision, Secretary of Education Rod Paige will comment on the current state of American public education, the promise of No Child Left Behind, and the work that remains to be done to improve the quality and inclusivity of the nation’s public schools.

8:45 a.m. Registration

9:00 Speaker: ROD PAIGE, U.S. secretary of education

10:30 Adjournment

I will attend the education speech on Wednesday, January 7.
