In the twenty-first century, America faces manifold perils, including terrorism, activist judges, global economic challenges, and cultural and historical ignorance. In Winning the Future (Regnery Publishing, 2005), Newt Gingrich lays out a plan for America’s greatness, including how to win the war on terror, reestablish God in American public life, reform Social Security, restore patriotism, and make American health care the global standard for excellence and accessibility. He will discuss these issues at this book forum.
